UPPER EXTREMITY VASCULAR

WHAT TO EXPECT

In an Upper Extremity Vascular Ultrasound a transducer (probe) will be placed onto your skin. A layer of warm gel will be applied directly onto the skin allowing sound waves to be transmitted from the transducer through the gel and into the body. You will have to remove any sweatshirts or t-shirts and place a gown on. You will be able to leave your undergarments on. The technologist will take images from your neck down to the wrist. If you are experiencing pain at the time of your examination, it may be uncomfortable due to the technologist applying pressure with the transducer. If you experience any pain during the exam please let the technologist know. Expect this exam to take approximately 45 minutes to 1 hour depending on the examination ordered.
